10th International Conference on

Adolescents and Adults with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders

Integrating Research, Practice, and Policy Around the World

April 18 - 21, 2026

The Hyatt Regency, Seattle, WA

How can this conference deepen the skills mental health professionals and social workers need to support individuals with FASD across the lifespan?

Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders (FASD) affects an estimated 1 in 20 people, yet it remains widely underrecognized in mental health and social service systems. Adolescents and adults with FASD often experience complex needs related to trauma, mental health, justice involvement, housing instability, and service access, areas where social workers, counselors, therapists, and other mental health professionals play a critical role.

This global conference is a vital gathering for mental health professionals, social workers, counselors, case managers, and allied providers who work with individuals with FASD, their families, and the systems that support them. Join colleagues from around the world in Seattle in April 2026 to:

- Strengthen your clinical and practice skills with research-informed approaches to assessment, intervention, and trauma-informed care.
- Hear directly from individuals with lived experience and caregivers, whose insights reshape how we understand and support FASD.
- Connect with professionals from more than 12 countries working across mental health, justice, child welfare, education, and community systems.
